In our jail at Montpelier, the average number of prisoners has been about thirty-five. At first no one was willing to employ them. The first trial made was to use a small gang to cut bushes and do other work on property owned by the sheriff. Those whose term of Capital City to Have Postal Savings sentence was shortest were employed, Bank System Tried In Post Office, and the state was given fifty cents per day for their labor. For two years no man has been re fused the chance to go outside and work. Many who were serving a sentence of a year have been trusted in this way. One man who is serving a sentence for jall's breaking and who was caught in Massachusetts after a search of six months, goes to his work daily without any restraint save conscience

Every man has to do laborer's work no matter what his occupation has been or is. Although this is one of the strongest labor sections in New England, we have had no trouble on that account Part of the reason is that the men in order to have as much money as possible for themselves over and above the amount paid to the state do not underbid the ordinary labor market, which is the reason why in many states there is such bitter objection to convict labor.

The plan we have tried has been fortunate enough to attract attention throughout the state and even beyond per load its borders. As the governor of Vermont has often commended the work, the method by which we have tried to help prisoners to help themselves is quite likely to be followed more extensively in this state. We have not tried for financial success in this work, but with the hope that unfortunate men who have almost lost their grip on the ladder might be helped.—F. H. Tracy in Tel. 53-L. "The Survey."

Fresh Air in Winter

In winter, it is hard to get fresh air in certain rooms. Some rooms in a house are usually colder than others, and if you open the windows it is hard again to heat the room properly.

If you keep the windows closed you don't get fresh air; if you keep them open you cannot quickly reheat the room. The solves the difficulty. You can leave the windows in a room open all day in winter, and when you close them apply a match to a Perfection Oil Heater and heat the room to any temperature you desire in a few minutes.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in japan or nickel. It burns for nine hours. It has a cool handle and a damper top. It has an automatic-locking flame spreader, which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that the wick can be quickly cleaned. An indicator always shows amount of oil in the font

The filler-cap does not need to be screwed down. It is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain. The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently, it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. The Perfection Oil Heater is strong, durable, well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.
